were no two senators from the same State, in the 48th and 49th Congresses, who so widely differed on general matters of legislation, especially in executive sessions, as Mahone and Riddleberger. To this, not Mahone and Riddleberger. To this, not even Harrison, republican, and Voorhees, democrat, of Iudiana, were exceptions. Riddleberger has two more sessions to serve in the Senate. If Mahone was always distinctively right, Riddleberger was too radically wrong to represent any portion of the people of Virginia for a single hour. Riddleberger claims that he and the republican party, to say nothing of the entire people of Virginia, have been deceitfully and ple of Virginia, have been deceitfully and treacherously treated, in and out of the Senate, and he now intends to present a side that to this time has not been heard. Quiet submission for the general good has only served to increase misrepresentation and wrong. If Riddleberger does not show from recorded facts the utter untruthfulness of the current representations of his official acts in open and executive sessions, and that many of those acts were turned to the credit side of a record other than his, then be frankly says that the next legislature will elect a short as well as a long term Senator. Forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. As soon as the records can be gotton here from Washington, we shall begin to how to the line regardless of where the chips may fly or fall. We anticipate that very few republi-cans, especially the timid ones, will look with much favor on such a discussion, but we believe the results will be beneficial to the party in the end. If they are not and should prove to be hurtful we know we shall be the only victim. They can work no harm to anybody else. We are resolved for ourself not to quietly tolerate a repetition of the blundering insolence of 1884 in the coming national campaign.—Shenandoah Herald. BLOWN THROUGH THE ROOF.-Edward Landre, of Calumo, Mich., a small mining town, returned from the mine where he is employed on Monday evening, bringing a box which had contained nitro glycerine. A friend accompanied Landre home, and the two were sitting in the kitchen where Mrs. Landre was busy getting supper. A man named Alfred Panquette was also in the room. A baby two years old occupied the room. A baby two years old occupied a high chair and a ten-year-old daughter of the Landres was helping her mother. The fire needing fuel Mrs. Landre went out into the yard, and, seeing the box her husband had brought home, picked up the coving the property:

By I. C. O'Neal, Deputy. er, split it in two, and put the pieces in the stove. A sharp, hissing noise like escaping steam immediately followed, and an instant later a terrific explosion. The stove was teakettle, itself intact, was blown through the roof, cutting its way as clearly as if it were a solid shot fired from a cannon. Through this aperture was also blown the The stove lifer was driven into the roof and the door was fairly riddled with stove fragments. The baby, astonishing to relate, was not killed, but was terribly bruised about the face and lost one eye, and perhaps the sight of the other. The little was flattened. Landre escaped with sligh wounds, and his wife, who stood right over the stove at the moment of the explosion. was not much hurt.

SAVED BY A BRAVE DOG -Little Maggie Curran, five years old, lives with her father in Mink Hollow, in the Catskill Mountains. When her father left his home Wednesday morning to work at having he told his daughter she might try and pick some black berries close by. By nine o'clock Maggie had a large dinner pail half full of tempting looking fruit, when she was suddenly startled by seeing a big bear come out from a dense thicket and come toward her. Mag-gie said "sho!" a number of times, but the bear merely growied. Then she picked up a thick stick and hit the intruder a crack over the head. At this point the bear caught hold of her dress and began dragging her into the woods. The little girl scream-ed lustily for help, and it came speedily in the shape of her father's watchdog Carlo. The intelligent animal seemed to grasp the situation at a glance, and it attacked the bear in the rear so as to make it drop the child. Carlo bit the brute so effectively that it was forced to let Maggie go, and then the courageous dog kept fighting Bruin for all he was worth, so that the child could have a chance to run home, and she improved it After she got there the whole neighborhood turned out, and the mountain side was thoroughly scoured. Carlo was found with the blood running down his sides. The pursuit of Bruin is still being kept up, though it is believed by old hunters that it is hiding in a
